Category:Video game lists by franchise Category:Video game lists by franchiseRenewable power technologies are among the best solutions for reducing carbon emissions in California. These technologies, such as wind and solar, are reliable, flexible, resilient, and effective. Despite these advantages, renewable energy continues to be a small player in California's energy sector. Less than 2 percent of California's electricity comes from renewable energy, with most of the rest coming from natural gas. Even though there is not a cap on renewables in the state, Governor Brown's executive order provides resources and flexibility that support renewable power, and it is taking off in the state. For example, the California Energy Commission, in partnership with the California Public Utilities Commission, and Department of Water Resources, have developed a new program to build energy storage systems to help support
